Fun with Dick and Jane

Millions of Americans remember Dick and Jane (and Sally and Spot too!). The little stories with their simple vocabulary words and warmly rendered illustrations were a hallmark of American education in the 1950s and 1960s.

But the first Dick and Jane stories actually appeared much earlier—in the Scott Foresman Elson Basic Reader Pre-Primer, copyright 1930. These books featured short, upbeat, and highly readable stories for children. The pages were filled with colorful characters and large, easy-to-read Century Schoolbook typeface. There were fun adventures around every corner of Dick and Jane's world.

Generations of American children learned to read with Dick and Jane, and many still cherish the memory of reading the simple stories on their own. Today, Pearson Scott Foresman remains committed to helping all children learn to read—and love to read. As part of Pearson Education, the world's largest educational publisher, Pearson Scott Foresman is honored to reissue these classic Dick and Jane stories, with Grosset & Dunlap, a division of Penguin Young Readers Group. Reading has always been at the heart of everything we do, and we sincerely hope that reading is an important part of your life too.

A Funny Ride

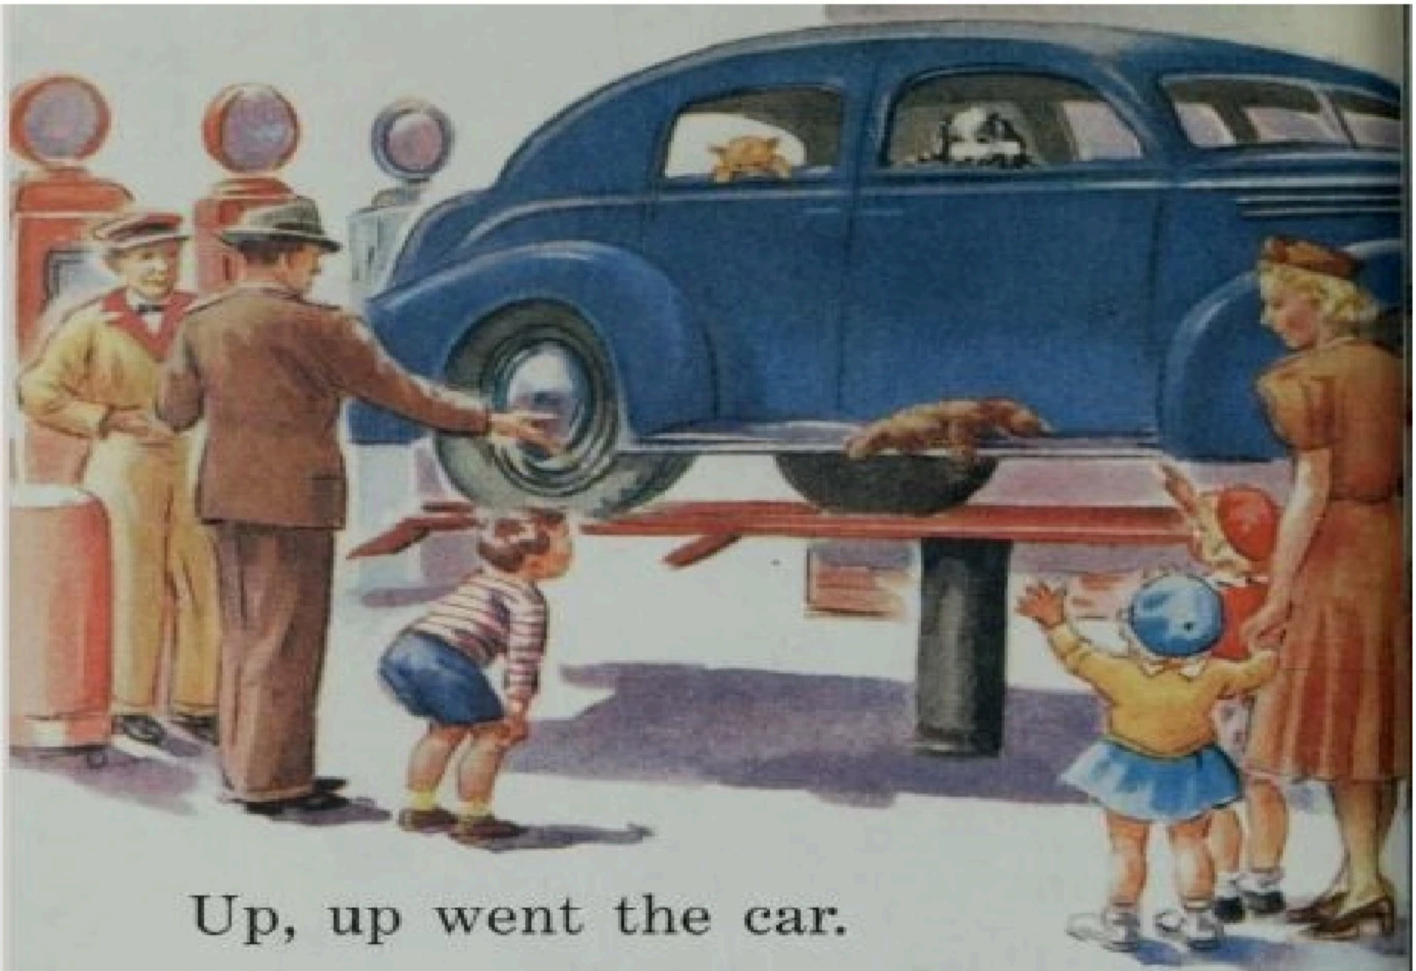
Father said, “I want something.
I want to get something.
Something for the car.
We can get it here.”

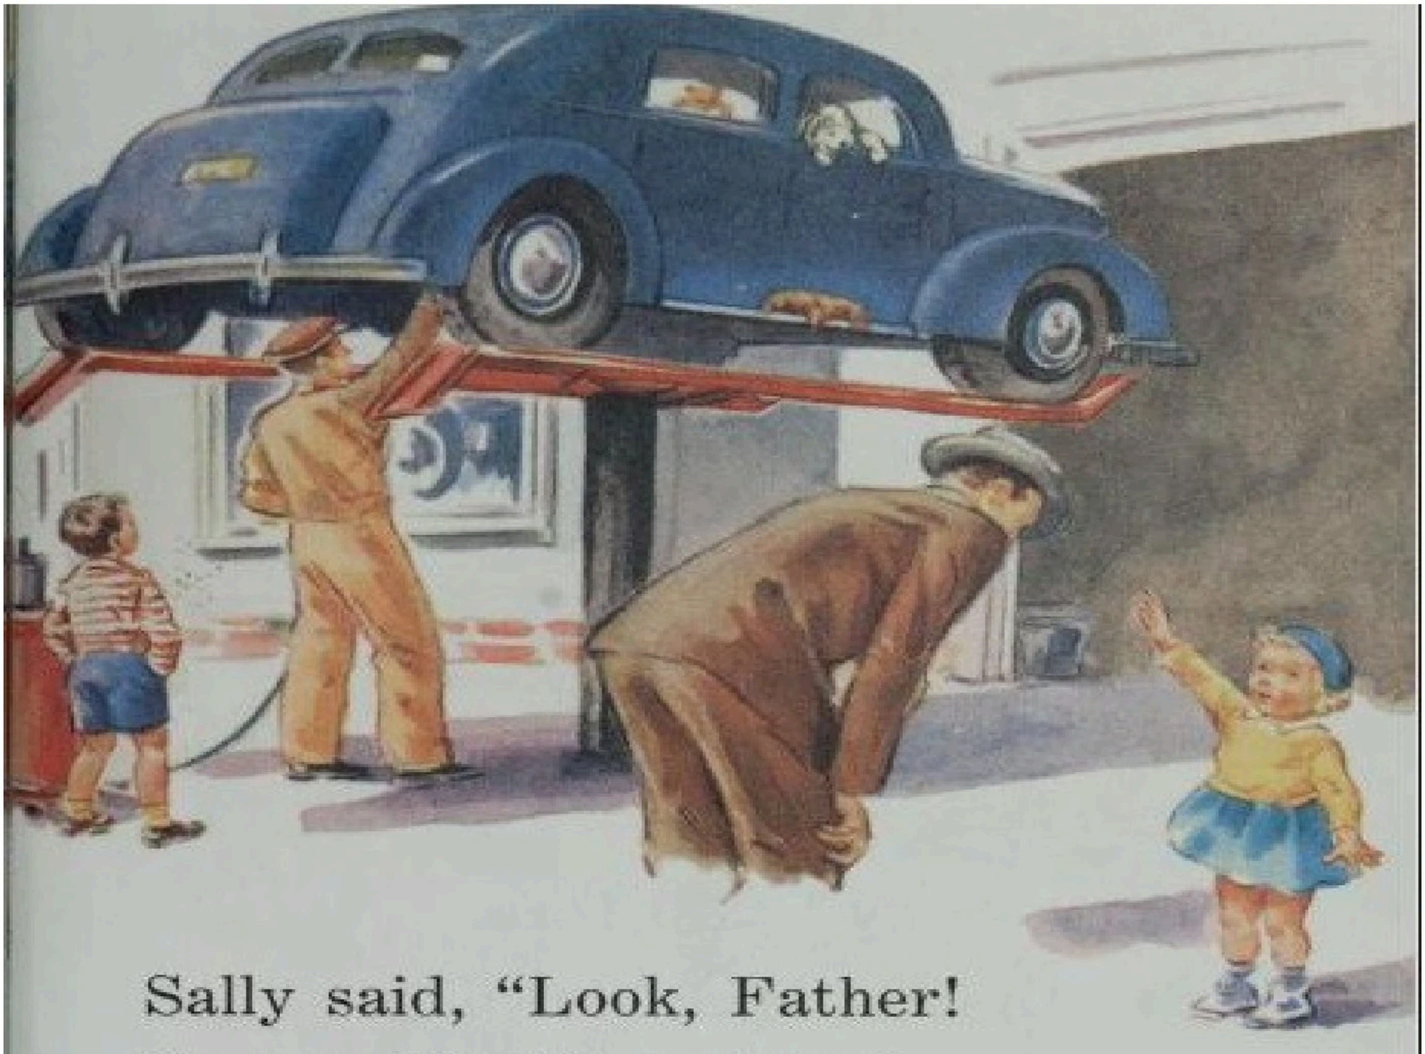
“Oh, Father,” said Sally.
“What do you want?
What do you want for the car?”

Father said, “You will see.
You will see.”



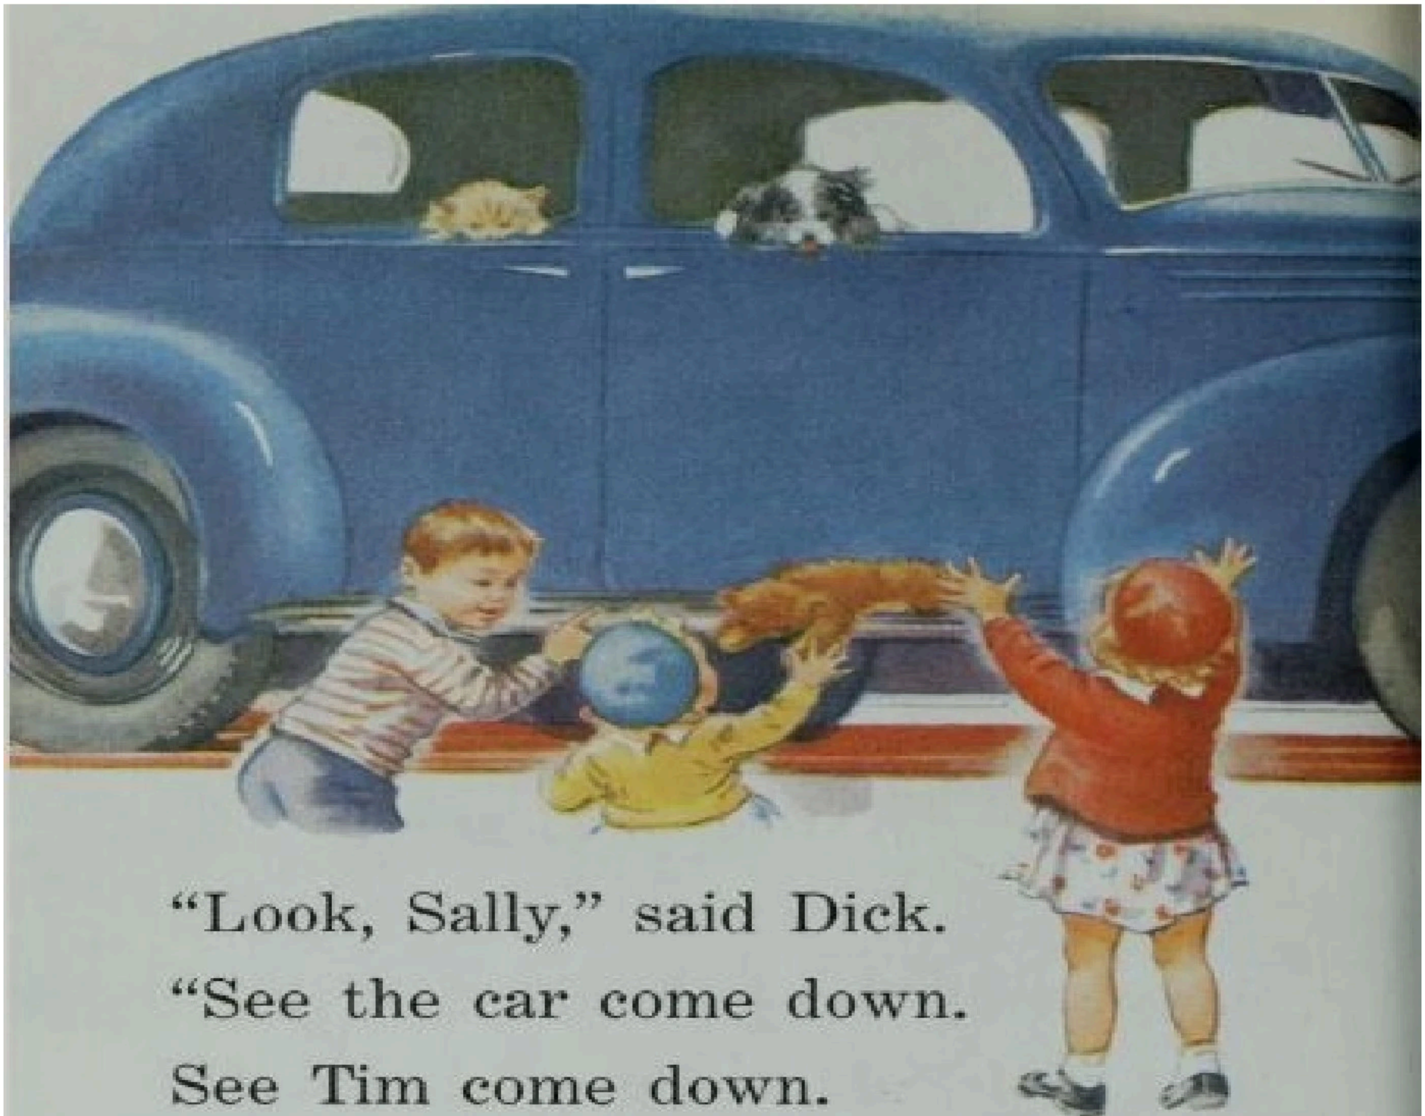
Up, up went the car.
"Oh, oh," said Jane.
"See the car go up.
The car can go for a ride.
It can ride up."

Sally said, "Oh! See Tim!
He went up, too.
He and Spot and Puff went up."



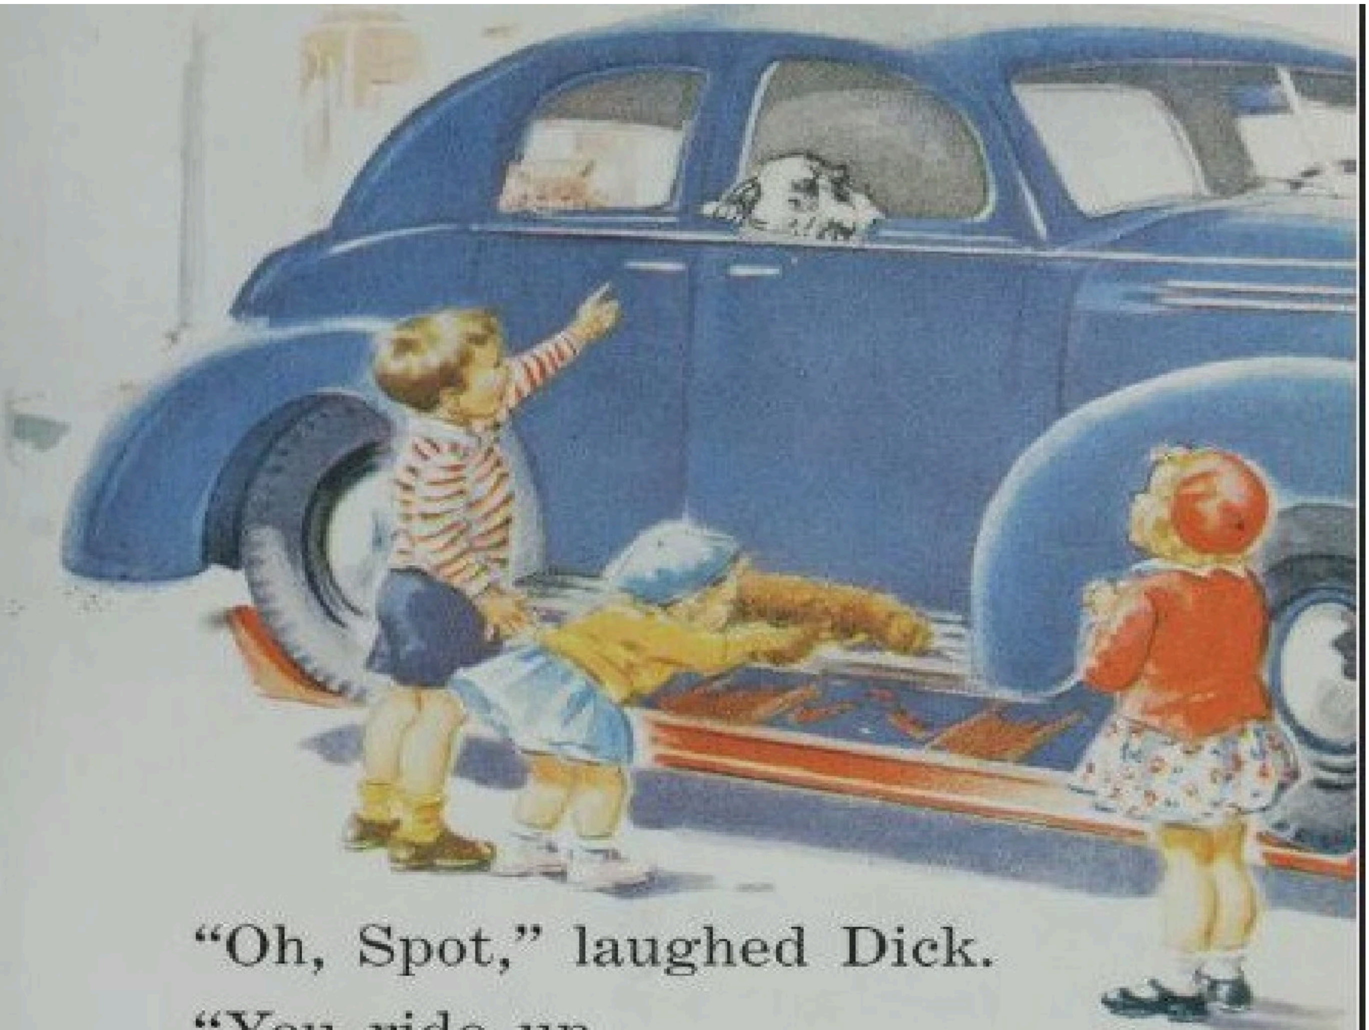
Sally said, "Look, Father!
Spot and Puff want to jump.
Please make the car come down.
Can you make it come down?"

"Yes, Sally," said Father.
"We can make the car come down.
We will get Spot and Puff and Tim."

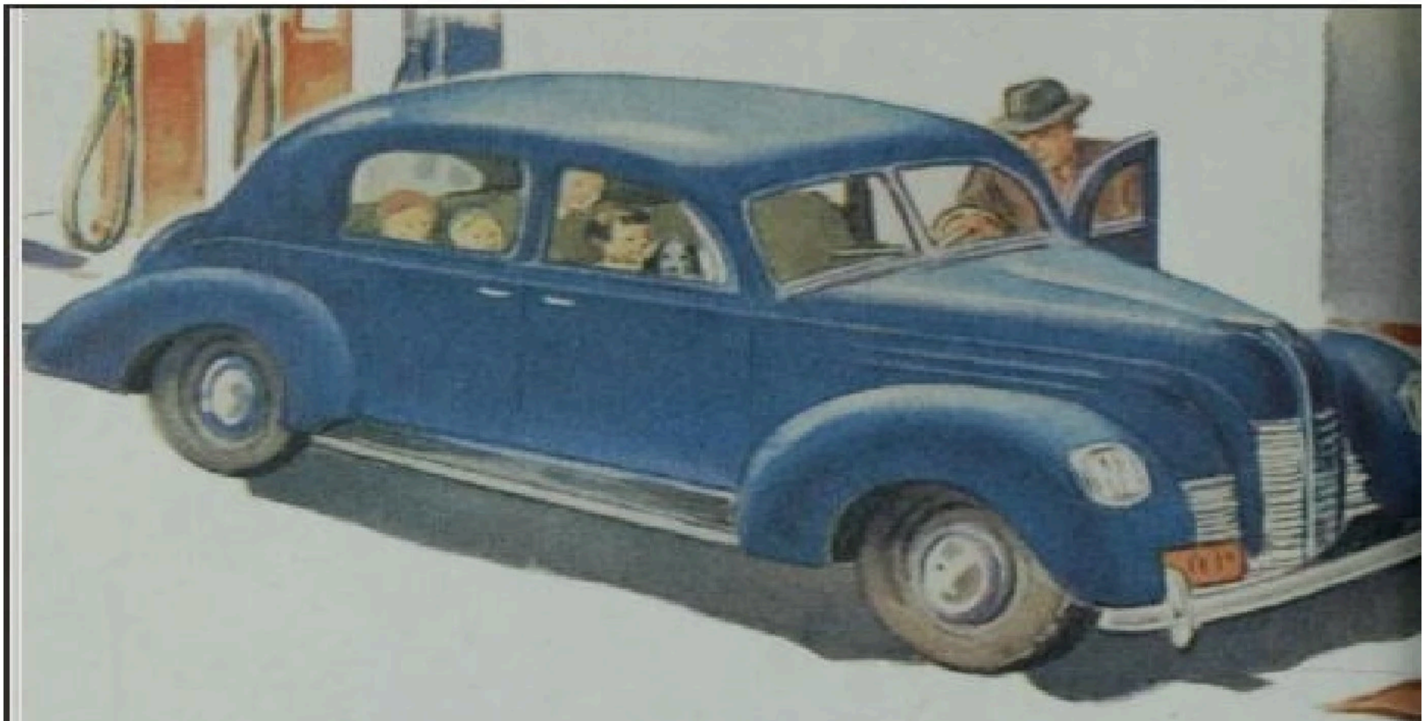


“Look, Sally,” said Dick.
“See the car come down.
See Tim come down.
See Spot and Puff come down.”

Sally said, “Down comes the car.
Down comes Spot.
Down comes Puff.
And down comes Tim.”



"Oh, Spot," laughed Dick.
"You ride up.
You ride down.
You ride up and down.
This is a funny ride for you.
A funny ride for you.
A funny ride for Puff.
And a funny ride for Tim."



Father went to the car.
He said, "The car can go.
The family can go.
The family can go away."

"Away we go," said Sally.
"We will not ride up and down.
We will ride away."
Away went the car.
Away went the family.
Away, away, away.
